

We want to look at the ovaries before you take medication to stimulate them. The ultrasound allows us to check for cysts before you take medications. We can also get an idea of the number of resting follicles or eggs (antral follicle count) to ensure that you are starting on an appropriate dose of medication.