

Anatomically the bladder lies on top of the uterus. When the bladder is full, the weight of the bladder will actually straighten the uterus, making it easier to pass the transfer catheter. Additionally, a full bladder aids in visualization while utilizing abdominal ultrasound.